

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

1 ----- 5 Methods and systems for higher-order PMD compensation are implemented by developing an effective mathematical model and applying economical design techniques to the model. By assuming a constant precession rate for a narrow band of frequencies in an optical signal, a simplified model of a higher-order PMD compensator can be derived.
The model can be used produce an economical compensator by making multiple uses of selected optical components.